

At Puerto Madryn (Golfo Nuevo) – Argentina.

While discharging these big and heavy things, amongst many

I had the chance to see them, at both sides of the pier.

The small one has still to grow for being able to jump on the platform as the rest.

When I approached them, this she sea-wolf started to bellow and moved towards me. I knew I was the intruder and stopped there.

A funny alternative: the bulbous bow of the vessel is a suitable place as well.

Puerto Madryn, Mar 2013